Announcing
The Gaylord and Dorothy Donnelley Research Fellowship
at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (U.K.)

The Gaylord and Dorothy Donnelley Foundation has established a postdoctoral fellowship to enable new and recent Ph.D.s from the University of Chicago to spend up to three years at Corpus Christi College in Cambridge. The Fellowship will recognize early-career scholars of exceptional promise and provide time and resources in support of their research efforts. This is purely a research fellowship, with no teaching duties included or expected. The Fellow is expected to take part in the activities of the College, such as seminars, workshops, and research groups at Cambridge in the School of Arts and Humanities or the School of the Humanities and Social Sciences. The Fellow will be provided a stipend, office space, a computer and supplies, housing assistance, and have access to the university’s libraries and other common facilities. The Fellow will also be assigned a faculty mentor to help integrate the Fellow into the campus culture.

Information about Corpus Christi College and about Cambridge University can be found at: http://www.corpus.cam.ac.uk/ and http://www.cam.ac.uk/

Fellowship terms:
- Annual stipend of £20,000, plus standard meal allowance and coverage of pension contributions and insurance.
- Accommodations for Fellows and their families will be provided in Corpus Christi College, space permitting, or there will be assistance for off-campus accommodations.
- Annual travel allowance of £2000 (including coverage of family members).
- Moving allowance at beginning and end of fellowship term.
- Support for computer purchase.
- The Fellowship is for three years, non-renewable.
- The inaugural fellowship term will begin Autumn 2009.

Eligibility:
Anyone receiving a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago Division of the Humanities, Division of the Social Sciences or the Divinity School from Autumn 2006 through Autumn 2008.
